Curran, Bob (editor) — Celtic Lore & Legend	Scott, Walter -- Ivanhoe
Dickens, Charles — A Tale of Two Cities	Defoe, Daniel — Robinson Crusoe
Eliot, George — Silas Marner	Greene, Graham — The Power and The Glory
Stoker, Bram — Dracula	Swift, Jonathan— Gulliver's Travels
White, T. H. — The Once and Future King	Joyce, James -- Dubliners

Extra Credit

Students have the option to complete a double-entry journal for extra credit, due on the first day of school.

Double Entry Journals

The dialectical or double entry journal is a type of two-column double-entry note taking. It helps readers construct meaning from a text, to personalize what they read, and to write down the insights gained from the reading. This type of journal allows students to question, elaborate, make personal connections, evaluate, reflect upon, make predictions, analyze, or interpret what they have read.

Find key quotes that...

- are important
- include symbolism
- express key ideas or concepts
- are interesting
- reveal something about a character

In your own words, provide a clear response to the quote. Why is it important? What does it mean? How does it relate to key themes/symbols, etc., in the work? For any literary work, your double entry journal must cover the entire scope of the selection.

- Do NOT only summarize the quote's content.
- DO critique the quote or ask questions.

The left hand column of a double entry journal is the space in which you record key ideas and quotes, and the right hand column is the space in which you put your reactions to that material. An analogy for this is to see the left hand column functioning as a highlighter pen and the right hand column as the notes scribbled in the margin.

Quotations	Reflections and Analysis
"Now we come to the most important thing. I've been thinking...We want to have fun. And we want to be rescued." (p. 37)	Ralph; This quote captures how he is stuck between two courses of action. He wants to have fun, to be a kid, to be carefree; but he also wants to get rescued, to be responsible, and to lead the younger kids to safety. He is stuck between the adult world, represented by Piggy, and the world of childish wants, represented by Jack. I wonder which route he will eventually follow...

The total amount of Extra Credit points earned will be determined by both quantity and quality:

4 page journals will earn UP TO 15 points Extra Credit

5 page journals will earn UP TO 20 points Extra Credit
